

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF NEVADA

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,)	Case No.: 3:17-cr-00094-RCJ-WGC Plaintiffs,)
vs.)	ORDER
MICHAEL CODMAN,) Defendant.)

Defendant Codman moves for early termination of his supervised release term based upon his reentering of society, his compliance with release conditions, and his desire to be a real estate agent for which he would have to pass a criminal background check. The Court is unpersuaded by these arguments and denies the motion.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Defendant pleaded guilty to Possession and Receipt of Interstate and Foreign Shipments in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 659. This conviction was the result of Defendant conspiring with his co-Defendant. His co-Defendant used his position as a UPS delivery driver to steal shipping boxes containing electronic devices belonging to Apple, Inc. These devices were worth more than one million dollars. Defendant purchased the stolen devices for $50,000 and then resold them for a profit of approximately $150,000.

1 The court sentenced Defendant to fourteen months' imprisonment, three years' supervised
 2 release, and ordered restitution in the amount of $150,000. Defendant served his term of 3 imprisonment from July 2018 to July 2019, when he began his term of supervised release. While
 4 incarcerated, Defendant bettered himself by taking advantage of several classes and earning a
 5 GED. Upon his release, he reentered society acquiring full-time employment as an appliance
 6 repairman and becoming a competitive bodybuilder. The Covid-19 pandemic, however, has caused 7 him to become laid off. He therefore began real estate classes, which he was close to finishing at 8 the time of briefing this motion in late 2020. At the time of filing the motion, Defendant has only 9 paid $1985 towards the restitution in this case.

10 LEGAL STANDARD

11 "The correct legal standard for deciding a motion to terminate supervised release is set 12 forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3583(e)." United States v. Emmett, 749 F.3d 817, 819 (9th Cir. 2014). This 13 statute reads, in pertinent part:

14 The court may, after considering the factors set forth in section 3553(a)(1),
 15 (a)(2)(B), (a)(2)(C), (a)(2)(D), (a)(4), (a)(5), (a)(6), and (a)(7) . . . terminate a term 16 of supervised release and discharge the defendant released at any time after the expiration of one year of supervised release . . . , if it is satisfied that such action is warranted by the conduct of the defendant released and the interest of justice

17 The factors include, but are not limited to: "the nature and circumstances of the offense and the 18 history and characteristics of the defendant;" "the need for the sentence imposed . . . to afford 19 adequate deterrence to criminal conduct [and] to protect the public from further crimes of the 20 defendant;" the applicable sentencing guidelines; "the need to avoid unwarranted sentence
 21 disparities among defendants with similar records who have been found guilty of similar conduct;"
 22 "the need to provide restitution to any victims of the offense," and "the need to provide restitution
 23 to any victims of the offense." 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a). "The expansive phrases 'conduct of the 24 defendant' and 'interest of justice' make clear that a district court enjoys discretion to consider a

1 wide range of circumstances when determining whether to grant early termination.” Emmett, 749
2 F.3d at 819.

3 ANALYSIS

4 Defendant argues that the Court should terminate his term of supervised release because of 5 the following: He has complied with all conditions of release. He did not have any disciplinary 6 infractions while incarcerated. He lacks any other criminal history. On release, he secured full-7 time employment until he was laid off because of the Covid-19 pandemic. Supervised release is 8 presenting an undue hardship on him by preventing him from pursuing his chosen profession to be
9 a real estate agent.¹ He has successfully rejoined society such as by contending in bodybuilding
10 competitions. Defendant also argues that, while he has not fully repaid his restitution, courts have 11 still allowed for termination of supervised release. See, e.g., United States v. Cunningham, No.
12 05CR2137-LAB, 2014 WL 3002207, at *2 (S.D. Cal. July 1, 2014).

13 The Government challenges the motion based upon Defendant’s failure to repay the 14 outstanding $150,000 in restitution to Apple, Inc. See United States v. Oak, 398 F. App’x 274, 275
15 (9th Cir. 2010) (affirming a district court’s denial of early termination of supervised release motion 16 based upon “the finding that [the defendant] still owes more than $200,000 in restitution”). The 17 Government also points to the fact that compliance with conditions of release and imprisonment
18 as well reentering society are expected and do not necessarily demonstrate “exceptionally good 19 behavior.” United States v. Miller, 205 F.3d 1098, 1101 (9th Cir. 2000); see, e.g., United States v.
20 McKay, 352 F. Supp. 2d 359, 361 (E.D.N.Y. 2005) (“McKay has resumed his pre-incarceration

21 ¹ Without citation to any authority, Defendant states that “his instructors have counseled him that 22 it will be extremely difficult to become licensed in Nevada if he is on criminal supervision,” (ECF
23 No. 46 at 3), and his “instructor has told him he has an excellent chance of obtaining a license, 24 even with the felony, if he is off supervision,” (ECF No. 51 at 3). Presumably, he is referring to the requirement in NRS 645.355, which mandates all real estate salespersons pass a criminal background check. Defendant speculates that the termination of the supervised release would make it more likely that he would be able to pass the background check.

1 life; apparently, has resumed his organizational endeavors; and has been restored to his family life.
2 All of these activities are commendable but are expected of a person on supervised release and do
3 not constitute the ‘exceptional behavior’ contemplated in the precedents.”).

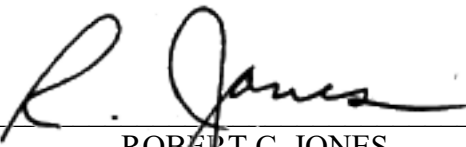

4 The Court is more so persuaded by the Government and denies the motion. While 5 Defendant may have successfully reentered society and complied with the conditions of his 6 release, these accomplishments are expected and do not necessarily demonstrate that termination
7 of supervised release is warranted. See Miller, 205 F.3d at 1101. Furthermore, the Court is 8 unpersuaded that supervised release presents an undue hardship such that termination of release
9 would be within the interest of justice. See Emmett, 749 F.3d at 820 (noting that an undue hardship 10 may be a consideration under “interest of justice”). Defendant has not presented any evidence to 11 show that he would be able to pass the criminal background check to become a real estate agent in 12 Nevada except for hearsay statements in his brief that his instructor believes that to be the case.
13 For these reasons, the Court denies Defendant’s motion.

14 CONCLUSION

15 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Defendant’s Motion for Early Termination of Supervised
16 Release (ECF No. 46) is DENIED.

17 IT IS SO ORDERED.
